Sunday, July 29 at 2:00pm

Worcester, PA (July 27, 2012) – Join county naturalist, Ruth King, at 2:00pm on Sunday, July 29 for a walk along the stream banks of the Zacharias Creek at the historic Wentz Farmstead, just off of Route 73 in Worcester. Grab a pair of old sneakers or waterproof shoes and come out to learn about the aquatic wildlife that lives in the creek. Pre-registration is required for this free program, but a $2.00 per person donation is appreciated.

Spring is a great time to experience the many fascinating species of invertebrates, fish, and birds that live in or near the Zacharias Creek. Ruth King, a naturalist in the Parks and Heritage Services Division of Montgomery County, has studied the wildlife found in this region and will inform participants about the species that depend on this local waterway. Meet her at the Visitors’ Center to begin the educational journey. Pre-registration is required.
