The Schuylkill River Trail

From the past to the present. From the historic river towns of Conshohocken, Norristown, and Pottstown to the rolling hills of Valley Forge National Historical Park. The Schuylkill River Trail in Montgomery County takes visitors through a rich blend of natural, cultural, and historical resources. The trail runs through a variety of urban, suburban, and rural landscapes, offering nearly 20 miles to hikers, joggers, bicyclists, equestrians, and in-line skaters.

The Schuylkill River Trail (SRT) is the spine of the Schuylkill River National and State Heritage Corridor. When completed, the trail will run over 100 miles from the coal region of Schuylkill County to the Delaware River in Philadelphia.

Evidence of several centuries of industrial use remains where river and canal navigation, quarrying of limestone and iron ore, and production of iron and steel have succeeded each other as mainstays of this region’s economy. Today, these industries are giving way to urban renewal, including high-rise development and riverfront restoration.

The trail provides direct connections to several other Montgomery County regional trails, including the Perkiomen Trail, the Cross County Trail, and the future Chester Valley Trail Extension. For those seeking public transportation to the trail, SEPTA offers excellent access via regional rail service and bus lines in Miquon, Spring Mill, Conshohocken, and Norristown.
